The picture above is The Connor House. It is a beautiful Victorian farmhouse. People that drive or walk by this house will be impressed by how neat the owners keep the yard and the home.

The name of this building is The Connor House. The Connor House was built in 1926. The address is 604 4th Avenue SW Ruskin, Florida 33570.

The Connor House was built so the people in the farm could live comfortably in it. They built it for their family. They also made so they could be close to the animals and crops that they had to take care of.

It was built for people to live in. The house was built so the residents can live in and feed animals and take care of the crops. It is still used for a family to live in even though it is not part of a farm anymore.

The outside of the house is yellow and is wooden. It has plants surrounding the house and a large tree in the front. You can see some houses around it if you walk by. It is beautiful.

Now it is being used for a private home where people are living.

The Connor House is important because it has been there for a long time and it should still be there.

The outstanding features is it's well maintained and it has trimmed trees. There are many wild flowers and trees around the home.

The Connor House is a Victorian farm house and has spindles. They used to call Victorian houses "painted ladies".

The house shouldn't be destroyed because after that you will never see it again or any other historical house.
